The fifth-class teacher, on entering her room, was pleasantly surprised to find every pupil sitting quietly at his and her desk. “What happened?” she asked. Timidly a little girl explained: “You told us once that if you left the room and came back and found everyone sitting quiet, you’d drop dead.”

ASCENSION OF THE LORD

04.05.08

A man was speeding down the motorway, keeping pace with a dozen speeding cars. The man got nailed by a speed gun. A police car took chase and soon pulled him over to the side of the motorway. After the usual ticket was issued the man asked “Officer, I know I was speeding, but I don’t think it’s fair – there were a dozen cars around me that were going as fast, so why did I get a ticket?” “Ever go fishing?” the policeman asked. “Yes,” the man replied. The man replied. The officer grinned back. “Ever catch all the fish?”

Before Jesus ascended he told the disciples to proclaim the Gospel to every creature. This is the calling of every Christian, to proclaim the Gospel by our lives and by our words. Let us ask God to forgive our failure to witness to the Good News and to give us the Holy Spirit so that we might be faithful to our Lord’s command.

For all Christians, that by their lives they may pass on the Good News.

For those preparing for exams, that they may have the Spirit’s help, according to their needs.

For those called to work as missionaries, that they may do the Lord’s work in today’s world.

A man had come home from an extra busy day’s work to meet his excited son wanting to hang out and do something together. The father had an idea. He looked around the house to find this picture of the world. The picture was of the globe on a sky background.

He brought it to his son, and they talked about our world. They talked about many of the problems our world faces and pointed out the country they lived in. Then he said, “How about we cut this picture into many pieces and you can put our world back together?”

The son thought that would be fun and thought of himself as kind of a healer or a great king. The man cut up the picture and dumped the pieces on the floor and said to his son, “Now put our world back together.” Thinking it would take the child a long time, he sat back on the sofa to relax.

Five minutes later his son shows up and says, all happy, “Here it is.”

The dad, kind of surprised, asked him “How did you put the world together so quickly?”

The son replied, “It was easy. On the back of the picture is a big man, and when you put the man together, the world comes together.”

When we work on ourselves, our world begins to take shape. When you build character, grow, personally develop, you put the man or the woman together and then the world comes together.
